Proceedings of the Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore.

Read:-

The following letter No.5339/2(A.D.) dated the 14th April 1914 from the Government of India in the Army Department to the Director, Medical Services in India:-

I am directed to say that the Government of India have had under consideration the question of introducing a more definite reciprocity between the civil and military medical services than that at present existing, as a result of the orders promulgated in India Army Circulars, Clause 189, dated the 31st October 1881. They have now decided that all medical officers, assistant and sub-assistant surgeons in military employ shall, when called upon to do so, render their services to civil departments gratuitously, and that similarly all such servants of Government in civil employ, including purely civil assistant and sub-assistant surgeons, shall perform, without payment, duties required of them on the military side in cases of necessity. Cases in which such officers, assistant and sub-assistant surgeons are called on to perform any specially arduous duty outside their own immediate work will be dealt with under the provisions of Finance Department Resolution No.249-F.A. dated the 15th July 1912.

Copy enclosed.

Medical Officers of the British and Indian Services bound to give their professional services without remuneration when required by proper authority in the interests of Government.

Officers of the Indian Army Medical Department, and of the Indian Medical Service, are not entitled to extra remuneration for the performance of any duty prescribed by regulation which may be required of them by proper authority in the interests of Government.

If the services of a medical officer, in military employ, are temporarily needed for Government purposes in other departments, they are to be asked for through the military authorities and no fee for such special or extra duty is admissible.

Similarly, in cases of emergency, military authorities are entitled to apply officially to local heads of departments for the gratuitous services of medical officers in civil employ.
